

Rules of the competition for best thesis on academic ranking

Eligibility:

The competition is open to PhD students who defended their thesis not earlier than 48 months before the date of deadline for applications. The PhD thesis must be presented in English.

Award:

The prize for the winner of the competition is a grant of 1000 euros. In addition, the awardee will have the opportunity to present his research at the IREG Observatory annual IREG Conference. A certificate will be delivered to the awardee.

Criteria:

The PhD thesis will be evaluated according to the following criteria:

1. Quality and originality of analysis
2. Contribution to good practice in academic ranking

Evaluation:

IREG Executive Committee will appoint an evaluation committee, whose members should not have any conflict of interest. Two distinct members of the committee will evaluate each candidate.

Applications:

Applications should include

1. The Curriculum Vitae of the candidate
2. The Thesis of the candidate (in English), along with a 2 pages summary highlighting the contribution of the PhD thesis to good practice in academic ranking.
3. A list of publications, manuscripts with the contribution of the candidate clearly specified.
4. A recommendation letter from the PhD advisor and/or a member of IREG Observatory

Application to be send to: secretariat@ireg-observatory.org by 15 May 2022